Luke 5:1-11 –

5:1 – The Lake of Gennesaret is also known as the Sea of Galilee. It is about 13 miles long and 7 miles wide.

5:3 – Sitting was the traditional position for a teacher. Seated is the traditional Jewish position for teaching with authority. Some early Christian preachers (for example, St. John Chrysostom) sat while the people stood.

5:4 – Launch out into the deep: St. Ambrose sees the spiritual meaning of this command as an invitation to give one’s life over to the deep mystery of the knowledge of the Son of God.

5:6 – The Lord draws people to Himself by things that are familiar to them. As He drew the Magi with a star (Math. 2:2), as He would draw tax collectors by a tax collector (5:29), here he draws the fishermen with fish.

5:8 – Peter’s cry in the face of divine power is not a rejection of Jesus (contrast 8:37). Rather, being suddenly cast in the light of Christ, holy people such as Peter become keenly aware of their own unworthiness (compare Isaiah 6:5; Rev. 1-17).

5:10- The great catch of fish (v. 9) is an image of the apostles bringing mankind to the knowledge of Jesus Christ, and it fulfills the prophecy of Jeremiah 16:16. In the festal hymn of Pentecost we sing to Christ, “Through the fishermen, You drew the world into Your net.”

PLURALISM VERSUS ABSOLUTE TRUTH

By Abbot Tryphon of The Morning Offering

As our society has become more pluralistic, it has been easy for some to fall into the error of believing that it does not matter what you believe, as long as you are sincere. Just as we have seen the progressive moral bankruptcy of our society, we have also witnessed the wholesale sellout of traditional Christianity by much of America’s religious community. The partial adherence of many of America’s denominations to the traditional gospel call to repentance, forgiveness and redemption through Christ has given way to a new kind of “salvation.”

These “churches” are now more concerned with social idealism than seeing souls saved through entering into a relationship with Jesus Christ. They have ignored our Lord’s own words, “My kingdom is not of this world” (John 18:36). They have shown forth for all see that their loss of faith has led to a replacement of the Good News of salvation in Christ with a mandate to build a Utopian society where social justice and peace reign forever. They have forgotten that Christ said we would never attain this outside of His Kingdom, “which is to come.”

What do we as Orthodox Christians do to counteract this treacherous loss of traditional, otherworldly Christianity? Surely the answer is not less fasting, less prayer, and less penance. We must rekindle our zeal for Christ. We must give ourselves over to the joy that is ours in living a life in Him. It is not in the things of this world that we will ultimately find happiness, but in living a life rooted in Jesus Christ.

We have been given a great and holy gift. During each celebration of the Divine Liturgy, we sing the words, “We have seen the True Light, we have received the Heavenly Spirit; we have found the true Faith, worshipping the undivided Trinity, who have saved us.” Let us commit ourselves anew to living this holy faith as true witnesses to the Lord. We have in our possession a great pearl. Let it be the inheritance we leave our children and the treasure we share with our neighbors.

THE MIRACULOUS DRAUGHT OF FISHES

The gospel for today allows us to witness a process of profound transformation take place in Peter's soul. This transformation shows itself in the way that Peter addresses Jesus. At the beginning of the episode, he calls him 'Master', at the end, he calls him 'Lord'. The first term implied that Peter recognized in Jesus a special authority, a superiority. The second term implies that Jesus has a certain sovereignty, a power over Peter himself, and also expresses the humble dependence that Peter feels towards Jesus. When someone who has accepted Jesus as 'master' then accepts Him as 'lord', great spiritual progress has been effected. Peter, falling to his knees before Jesus, says to Him: 'Depart from me; for I am a sinful man'. The miracle produces in Peter a very vivid awareness not only of the power, but also of the holiness of Jesus: for Jesus could not perform such works were He not very close to God. Peter has had personal experience, in his everyday life, of Jesus' goodness and purity, and the miracle somehow consecrates this impression of holiness. Jesus must withdraw from him, Peter is not worthy of being so close to Him. It is not that the holiness of Jesus constitutes a danger – it is the contrast between this holiness and Peter's sinfulness which is too intense; it is like an intolerable burn. Contact with absolute holiness cannot but cause a sinner moral agony; for, as with the woman taken in adultery, the silent presence of this holiness is, in itself, a judgment and condemnation. If very few Christians have a lively and agonizing awareness of their sins, it is because Jesus is not truly present to them. We touch here on a point which is important, and that concerns 'evangelization' and 'conversion': one does not progress from the consciousness of sin to the presence of Jesus, but, on the contrary, it is from the presence of Jesus that one becomes conscious of sin. It is the way we look at Jesus (or, rather, our awareness of the way that Jesus looks at us) which produces repentance in us.

IN MEMORY OF DEPARTED LOVED ONES OR FOR THE HEALTH OF YOUR FAMILY MEMBERS, DONATE TOWARDS THE NEW ICONS THAT WILL BE WRITTEN IN OUR CHURCH!

As the proposal for the completion of the painting of the nave ceiling and the writing of new icons and calligraphy (Scriptural verse) from iconographer Dennis Bell and the painters has been received, we seek among our beloved parishioners generous donors of these sacred images for our place of worship. Christ the Pantocrator medallion icon (14' in diameter) can be offered to St. Nicholas Church for $5,000.00, with the two supporting angels (each 11' x 12') $2,000.00 each. The calligraphy (Scriptural verse) across the lower wall in the nave can be donated for $1,400. If you desire to gift our parish with these "windows to heaven" or give of your finances to pay for a portion of the cost, speak to Father Michael or the church financial officers, Sue Semancik or Cheryl Tomko. Your stewardship in the Lord's House is certainly God-inspired and adds to the "heaven on earth" appearance in this holy dwelling place.
