Matthew 14:22-34 –

14:22-33 – Only God has dominion over nature; thus, this miracle confirms the divinity of Christ.

14:27 – This is the second time Christ permits His disciples to be caught in a storm. The first time He was with them; here He had left them alone. In this way, Christ strengthens their faith that He will always be with them in the midst of the storms of life. It is I is literally translated "I Am," which is the divine Name of God; Christ reminds the fearful disciples of His absolute and divine authority over their lives.

14:28-30 – Peter’s faith allows him to walk on the water. Note that Peter does not ask to walk on water per se, but to come to Jesus; his desire is not to perform miracles but to be with the Lord. Peter is able to participate in this divine miracle as long as he keeps his focus on Christ. As soon as he is distracted, he begins to sink.

14:31 – The Greek term for doubt here means “wavering” or “hesitation.” The cause of Peter’s sinking was not the storm, but the doubt; thus Christ does not rebuke the wind, but Peter.

14:33 – This is the first time the disciples confess that Jesus is the Son of God. Knowing that only God can be worshiped, they confess Christ’s divinity by worshipping Him. The boat is symbolic of the Church.

OPEN WIDE THE DOORS TO THE KINGDOM

By Abbot Tryphon of The Morning Offering

The question recently came up among the clergy of our diocese as to whether it is proper to allow a man to attend services while wearing an earring. It seemed to me that asking that he remove the earring would make him feel unwelcome, and unless it was causing undue distraction for other worshipers, the Church needed to accommodate these variations in style.

Style is style, and it is ever changing. Men of my generation were the first long-hairs in more than a century (yes, I was a hippie) and sported paisley bell-bottoms, tie-dyed shirts, and beads. The young have always experimented with their own generational style. That said, the Church has the duty to require those entering into the temple to dress modestly so as not to show disrespect to God’s house or to distract other faithful.

We are losing our youths, as statistics are clearly showing, so let us not make it even easier for them to leave by placing demands on them that are, ultimately, unimportant. I have worked with youths my entire monastic life, and they respond to me both when they come to the monastery and when I visit college campuses, because they sense I accept them just as they are.

I know a man whose neck and hands are tattooed with a barbed-wire design. He is now living out his repentance as a Benedictine monk because somewhere along the way he was made to feel welcome in a church. When I met him, I told him he would be a great example to youths of the truth that the door to repentance is open wide to all.

The great elder Archimandrite Sophrony of St. John the Baptist Monastery in Essex, England, once greeted the visiting daughter of a monk with great joy and sweetness, even though she had a large purple Mohawk. Love and acceptance open wide the doors to the Kingdom. We must love young and old into the Church just as they are.

WALKING ON THE WATER

Today’s Gospel lesson contains precious information that applies to our spiritual life. The wind-tossed waters on which Peter wants to walk could be compared to our difficulties and, especially, to our temptations. Why does Peter sink? Is it a sign that he was presumptuous, and should not have attempted to walk on the water? But Peter had asked Jesus for permission. He did not leave the ship without a positive invitation from the Lord: “Come!” We can learn from this that we should never undertake anything extraordinary without a call, an order from the Master. But the center of gravity of this episode lies elsewhere. As long as Peter goes towards Jesus, as long as his attention remains fixed on that goal, he is able to walk on the sea. It is when his attention is distracted from his goal, when he notices the storm surrounding him that he starts to be afraid and, so, to drown. Thus, in our moments of temptation, we must look directly, constantly, at the person of Jesus. We must fix in our minds the image of the Saviour and pay no attention to the surrounding storm. If we look back at our spiritual defeats, we will see that it is always at the instant when we stopped looking at Christ and going straight towards Him that we have begun to be beaten. As soon as we allow our attention to be distracted by the wind and the waves, as soon as we delay in order to consider the temptation and discuss it, instead of going straight towards, Jesus, we are lost – for we always find ourselves weaker than the adversary. We are saved from temptation (and all distress) only when we make up our minds to look at Jesus alone, and not at the obstacles. Briefly, instead of facing the temptation and fighting it head-on, what matters is, instead, to face the Saviour, and to substitute His person for the temptation. Many storms surround and threatens us. “Lord.... bid me to come to You...!
